Brian MacKenzie-Teepell/USPA 24 News - A high-priority search is currently underway in Nova Scotia following the disappearance of a 42-year-old woman from a New Glasgow hospital.

Nova Scotia Health reports that Jennifer Harris was last seen on Friday evening at Aberdeen Regional Hospital at approximately 9:20 p.m. Officials state that she departed the hospital in an unlicensed vehicle and has not been located since.

Jennifer is described as being 5’6” with brown hair and blue eyes. She was last seen wearing a black hooded sweatshirt, green pants and white running shoes.

The authorities are now requesting that the public provide any relevant information that could facilitate the safe location of Jennifer Harris. Anyone who may have seen Jennifer Harris or is aware of her possible whereabouts is urged to contact the police without delay.

When someone goes missing, it can have a profound impact, but by spreading the word with respect, we can work together to bring them home to those who care about them.

This week marks the launch of a nationwide, week-long initiative that aims to build bridges between law enforcement and our communities, promoting a culture of mutual understanding, public safety, and appreciation for the tireless efforts of law enforcement professionals.
